

GATWICK AIRPORT
DETAILED MOVEMENT ANALYSIS BY AIRLINE OPERATOR
APRIL 2022

This is a summary of the detailed aircraft movements based on official Eurocontrol sources for April 2022 and as recorded each day online on The Original Gatwick Spotters List.

Overall Summary.

With the start of the summer season, we have seen an exponential rise in Gatwick traffic – from an average of some 2600 movements a week in March to about 4400 per week in April. The initial signs are that May will show a further rise to around 4850 per week. This suggests that Gatwick is, at least in terms of movements, back to about 80% of pre-Covid activity.

EasyJet still account for some 55% of all movements and operated in April about an extra 50 services a day over its March level of activity. To assist in such additional services both at Gatwick and elsewhere it is noted that the company has had to lease in eight all-white painted A320s from SmartLynx.

Vueling virtually quadrupled their flying in April and are now easily the second largest operator with around 20 services a day, closely followed by WizzAir as the current number three operator at about 16 services a day. British Airways recommenced their shorthaul activities, but have not yet re-badged themselves as BA Euroflyer as previously announced. They have however had to bring in additional aircraft from their fellow subsidiary, Iberia Express, to cope with the increase in services. In contrast, the holiday carrier Tui has barely increased their activity and have fallen to number five, just ahead of Ryanair, which is now steady at 10 services a day.

One new carrier for Gatwick which has commenced regular services is the Turkish airline Corendon, now regularly operating at least once a day from Antalya and sometimes twice; additional flights using their Maltese subsidiary are also apparent in May.

Many other regular operators have increased their services in April – the Canadian airline WestJet went up to a daily service from four times a week and Icelandair are back on a daily basis, as was Air Malta, though the latter seems to have reduced their activities towards the end of the month.

A couple of regulars have, however, dropped out. Swissair, which was providing seven flights over the weekend has not been back since 27 March and Tunisair, which was operating once a week on Thursdays has also ceased, though another Tunisian operator, Nouvelair now operates twice weekly on Saturdays and Tuesdays.

And, as forecast, the low-cost Singapore operator, Scoot, now operates regularly twice a week on Sundays and Tuesdays with their garish yellow Boeing 787 Dreamliners.

COMMENTARY

The above summary shows all arrivals and departures between 11 pm and 7 am.

In the period from 2300 to 0700; the hourly figures (half-hourly wef 0500) were as follows (March 2022 in brackets):

	Landings	Take-offs
2300-2359	552 (238)	25 (10)
0000-0059	246 (67)	9 (2)
0100-0159	208 (43)	2 (1)
0200-0259	109 (17)	0 (0)
0300-0359	35 (19)	0 (0)
0400-0459	19 (17)	0 (0)
0500-0529	15 (23)	0 (2)
0530-0559	18 (23)	152 (44)
0600-0629	45 (22)	318 (162)
0630-0659	51 (50)	365 (192)

Perhaps unsurprisingly, with the increase in activity at the start of the summer season, we see a massive increase in night-time movements.

The number of night landings in April 2022 overall showed a material increase to 1,298 (March 519) – 43.3 per night as against 16.7 for March. Particularly notable is the very significant increase in post-midnight landings. The Night Period landings were predominantly those of EasyJet although Tui and British Airways shorthaul were also significant and WizzAir was notable for the disproportionate number of landings in the 0200 to 0259 period in comparison with its actual number of flights.

Early morning landings tend to be in respect of long-haul overnight flights.

On night period take-offs, the figures are overwhelmingly focussed on early morning departures, with an overall increase from 413 in March to 871 in April (being a daily average increase from 13.3 to 29.0). It is perhaps notable that morning departures only commenced at 0530 and, again, are overwhelmingly EasyJet departures as the above schedule illustrates.
